LOCAL ORGANIZATIONS ENDORSE ROAD TAX

Chamber Of Commerce and Rotary Clubs Go on Record and Put Up Money For Cause

Here in Richmond where the folks have their own good roads in the shape of paved asphalt streets, and have paid high taxes for them, they seem strong for the special road tax to be voted on to provide good roads for the country districts.

At meetings of two of the business men's organizations here this week the special tax has received unanimous endorsement. The Chamber of Commerce and the Rotary Club gave their enthusiastic approval to the special tax and will co-operate in every way possible to help carry the election on Nov. 7.

The Chamber of Commerce endorsed the special road tax by unanimous vote at the meeting last week and subscribed the sum of $50 for the purposes of publicity. The Rotary Club also gave unanimous endorsement to the tax and subscribed $25 to help the good cause.

SANITARIUMS RAISE THE DRY ISSUE

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 14—With the Volstead law now being enforced in the state, in the territorial possessions and on the high seas, prohibition agents and enforcement officers here are wrestling with still another angle.

During the recent hearing conducted here by the department, in which several doctors and drug stores were involved, question was raised as to the legality of "sanitariums" for persons recovering from delirium tremens.

In the course of the hearing the proprietor of a "sanitarium" admitted that large quantities of whiskey were necessary in his "eliminative treatment." His patients were told, he said, they could have all they wanted.

This raised the question, according to W. B. Stanfield, government prosecutor, as to whether the inmates of these sanitariums were in reality suffering from delirium tremens or whether they just saw pink elephants and purple snakes long enough to get liquor.

Just what action will be taken by the department has not been decided according to Prosecutor Stanfield. However, he said, steps may be taken to have such institutions discontinued because in the theory of the Volstead act there are no persons suffering from delirium tremens.

LLOYD GEORGE SPEAKS TO LIBERALS

(By Associated Press)
Manchester, Oct. 14—Prime Minister Lloyd George's speech to the Liberals here today, who expected no historic utterance, was a disappointment because he gave no intimation of his plans or program. He asserted the future is perplexing and that the situation is too grave for any man to indulge in party or personal maneuver. Turning to home policies, the subject on which the whole empire was awaiting his pronouncement, he merely said that there are "die hards on both sides," and added if there is to be a change in the cabinet "no man will welcome it more than I."

JOE BOGGS WRITES ON GOOD ROADS

Frankfort, Ky., Oct. 14—The State of Kentucky, needs more "progressive and energetic road organization like the Ky.-Va. Road Association, for the purpose of arousing public opinion to the necessity of constructing the primary system of State Highway Engineer, declared in a letter to Col. Jim Maret of Lexington, the "Boone Highway Man."

"I have given a good deal of thought to have the best method of financing the system of roads, and for some time have had the sincere opinion that a bond issue of $50,000,000 to $75,000,000 is the most feasible plan. The taxpayers of the state will not permit either political party to increase the State tax rate, but by capitalizing the present road fund, which is largely derived from the automobile tax and the sinking fund, the interest charge of a $50,000,000 bond issue can be taken care of—that is, the proposed system of State roads can be constructed in five or six years by the bond issue plan, without affecting the present tax rate of the State at all, if such is predicated on the use of our present income.

"As an election for a bond issue will first have to be called by the legislature before popular ratification, a good many large road associations like the Ky.-Va. can arouse popular opinion in the fall election of 1923, as to commit both political parties to the plan and to elect a governor and a legislature, regardless of political faith, that will submit the question to the electorate. It is my firm conviction that when this question is submitted to the people for a vote, with a proper educational campaign behind it, it will carry by a very handsome majority and assure the State a system of modern roads while most of the present generation is still alive.

"In my speech at the Winchester meeting, I also called attention to the 'mud tax' that is now being paid by the people of this State, which at a conservative estimate amounts to not less than $25,000,000 a year, and if the truth were known, I expect amounts to $75,000,000. I have arrived at these figures by estimating that the 120,000 automobiles in the State are damaged at least $100 a year additionally on account of bad trunk line roads, which alone is the staggering sum of $12,000,000. All other vehicular traffic, the number of which is many times that of automobiles, can without doubt be estimated at the same. If in addition to this you can take into consideration the comfort and welfare of the average citizens we must add an additional $1,000,000, making a conservative 'mud tax' of $25,000,000 a year that no sheriff collects but which everyone is compelled to pay if he owns an automobile, truck, a farm wagon, or any other type of vehicle.

"I therefore, believe that if the main trunk line projects of the State, each had a live organization behind them to assist in crystallizing public opinion and to help educate the average citizen, they could soon bring about far better highway conditions in this State."

The Kyva (Kentucky-Virginia) Road Association was organized at Jackson, on July 14, 1922, adopting the motto "On To Pound Gap." M. H. Holtz of Jackson, president, Eula Hammonds of Jackson, secretary and treasurer, and Judge J. A. Smith of Hazard, vice president.

All of the Louisville players believe that he is a big league man sure and are pulling for him to come through. WOODS WRITES OF HARVEY CHENAULT

The following from Clarence E. Woods, former mayor of Richmond, and now Secretary of the Sumpter County Chamber of Commerce at Bushnell, Fla., will be read with deep interest: Editor Register:

Today, Neville Moberly hurried a message to me of the sudden death of my beloved friend, Harvey Chenaunt. I drop my work to send this brief tribute to the memory of a college mate who developed into more and more of a man than almost any of his contemporaries. He was a sure enough MAN. Oh! Harvey, I call your name with reverence and with gratitude. In every phase of life he threw the whole weight of his influence and purse on the right side. In college, a capital student and companion; on the ball field, a dashing player; on the farm, an industrious, hard-working man alongside his laborers; in church, liberal and active and consistent. I would not believe Harvey Chenaunt had done a deliberate wrong if it were sworn to. He was not built that way. He was the expression of the best things in his whole race of people, a race that has been sturdy and God-fearing and true. You who have been with him so constantly probably miss the man of today only. To me, long absent from him, bidding him farewell on his sick-bed last spring, he was before me from boyhood until then, a panorama of life spanned by half a century. In it all he shines out as a distinctive type of a creature that grew and grew better and better, until his end came, when he reached the summit of his excellence and was called higher, fitted for the place God has made for his elect. Farewell, boy of my college days, man of my maturer years, friend of mine when it was worth a prince's ransom to take the side of right on which I found myself for the time alone. Illustrative of his boldness, I cite this: When the temperance rally at the Richmond court house ended and some one said, "Who will carry this banner at the head of the procession, I, then Mayor, advanced and seized the banner. I had taken but a few steps, when I heard these words: 'You shall not walk alone—I will stand by you!' It was this same Harvey Chenaunt, farmer, then, and yet resplendent as a General in his boldness. And he and I carried that banner all over Richmond, and by our side walked another valiant man, Bob Golden, who dared uppopularity and business loss to stand up for the cause that lacked assistance. God bless them both, the dead and the living. I pay them homage of my soul from faraway Florida.

Clarence E. Woods, Secretary Sumpter County, Chamber of Commerce, ex-Mayor of Richmond, Ky.

NEW BRUNSWICK MURDER UNSOLVED

(By Associated Press)
New Brunswick, N. J., Oct. 14—Stung by charges of "bungling stupidity," hurled by counsel for Mrs. Frances Hall, detectives working on the Hall-Mills murder, struck back today, "we have not eliminated Mr. Hall from our investigation and we have no sign yet that we can do so," declared county detective Totten. Totten said the slain rector's eyes were closed when the body was found. Much importance is attached to this as indicating that some one with a measure of affection for the minister took part in the murders. Eyes of a person shot to death invariably remain open until some one closes them, Totten declared.

MONEY NEEDED TO HELP GOOD CAUSE

MADISON DOWNED BY VERSAILLES

Locals Lose by Two Touchdowns—Gentry Stars At End For Local Team

Versailles proved too strong for the Madison football eleven Friday, defeating the locals by a score of 12 to 0. The Madison boys played fair ball but made several costly fumbles and misplays. Versailles kicked off to Madison who defended the ball and made a 50 yard run, carrying the ball within 30 yards of the goal before he was downed. He had an open field just before he was tackled, the Versailles men getting him from behind. When he fell he dropped the ball, a yellow and white recovering. They punted the ball out of danger. During the first quarter, the locals outplayed Versailles by a wide margin. After receiving the punt they tore great gaps in the line, putting the ball on the 23 yard line before they were stopped. However, with the close of the first quarter, Versailles took up an offensive game with much success. The Boston Brothers and Edger traveled for good gains time after time. Just before the close of the half a pass, which netted 20 yards, put the yellow and white eleven in position to score. One thrust at the line proved unsuccessful but Edger carried the ball over the next down by leaping around the center of the line.

Near the close of the third period Farley recovered a fumble about 10 yards from the goal. He had an open field but stumbled. Here the quarter closed. Farley hit center for seven yards, but referee Hainin moved the ball back three yards, claiming that Farley had been tackled there. The next play netted three yards but here Madison resorted to a pass which was grounded, the ball being put in Versailles possession on the 20 yard line. Then the Versailles backs started down the field for another touchdown. Edger got away for two long runs while the rest of the backfield plowed thru for many yards. Within 10 yards of the goal Boston hit the line as Farley had done in the previous half, for 7 yards. The whistle blew when he had traveled only half the distance, the locals claimed and that he had been tackled there. Hainin allowed the gain, however. Williams Boston carried the ball over on the next play.

For the locals Ralph Gentry was the outstanding man. He broke up every play around his end with the exception of one. Versailles resorted to the other end after finding a stone wall in Gentry. Time after time he broke thru and threw the Versailles backs for losses. But for his stellar work the score would probably have been much larger. The line-ups:

Madison: Hacker re; Boen rt; Hurst rg; Allman c; Bower lg; Wells lt; Gentry lb; Huguley qb; Farley rb; Moberly in; Clouse fl; Versailles: Clark re; Daugherty rt; Brandenburg rg; Jones c; Sutton lg; Waynescott lt; Benman lb; Brown qb; B. Boston rb; Edger lb; W. Boston fl. Substitutes, Madison: Reeves for Moberly; Moberley for Boen; Terrill for Reeves; Boen for Moberly; Adams for Hurst; Moberly for Boen; Reeves for Moberly; Rymell for Bower; Saulley for Farley; Versailles: Craig for B. Boston; McCollough for Beaman; Wilson for Sutton. Referee, Hanson, Kentucky.
